THE SILVER LESSON.

Silver is still reeling under the blows of the gold conspirators. There last broadside was the cessation of coinage by the Mint of India.

It was never so low in the history of the world. At the present writing it is impossible to say where it is, it may have dropped a notch or two since the caption of this article was written. We hope to see it go lower, as nothing but a slump in the price that bankrupts half the world, will ever teach the finance cranks of the country, what a depreciation of the metal means. The only way to cure some people of a liking for some things, is to give them more than they want of it.

The gold bugs have figured that a fall in silver and a rise in gold, means more money to them.

If it falls so far as to spread general financial devastation over the world. The men who have engineered this hell spawned conspiracy, will find themselves involved in the general disaster.

From the remains of a thousand broken banks, will be built up a bimetallic system of finance, that will give the rich and poor an equal footing in the money marts of the world.

Nothing less than the inevitable ruin that follows the fall of silver, will ever change the present wretched system, the invention of sordid bankers and money shavers, to squeeze the laborer and the producer. So we say we hope to see the white metal still depreciate in value, until in the universal downfall of all values but gold, there can be no longer any doubt that depreciation of silver and general bankruptcy, go hand in hand.

It will be a severe lesson to the country; to the world, but it is needed, and may as well come now as at some later period.

Why We Do It.

Several parties have stopped us on the street to inquire why we allowed a correspondent to occupy the columns of the APPEAL to abuse the editor. If a man proposes to abuse us, we had much rather see his communication in the APPEAL than in any other paper, and persons desiring to lambast the writer, will confer a favor on us by calling here before going elsewhere.

Anything that can make the APPEAL interesting, is always printed with pleasure.

When Dr. Guinan's long communication came in, it enabled us to enjoy a slight relaxation from the "cares that fret the day," and while the printers were climbing on the copy, were enabled to lay aside our editorial dignity and slide over to John Sweeney's billiard saloon, and beat Jack Wall a couple of games of billiards. French caram 35 points up.

No indeed, don't let any one hold back when he has an interesting communication about the APPEAL editor, bring it here. The public look to the APPEAL for interesting matter and no where else.

You might get it into the columns of some other paper and it wouldn't be read.

A lady writes to the APPEAL that it ought to correct a libel on the sex that is going the rounds of the press. The Examiner says that a well proportioned woman's neck should measure exactly the same as her thigh, and the correspondent says that this is all nonsense. Probably the Examiner reporter measured the wrong woman when he wrote the item. Nobody takes the Examiner seriously when it speaks of the fair sex.

If Mr. Parkinson will produce a bystander at the Festival of Wednesday evening, to whom the editor of the APPEAL remarked that the winning of the gold headed cane insured him the Catholic vote for State Printer, he will pay $100 to said Parkinson.

We will further inform Mr. Parkinson that we are not a candidate for State Printer. We make this statement to put a stop to the mental worry over the matter, which is fast undermining the man's enervated intellect.
